AMONG OUR WRITERS.

Alfred Henry Lewis.

FROM PUBLISHERS' ANNOUNCEMENT.

"Wolfville Days" is a companion to "Wolfville," which was probably the most successful book of Western stories published since the early works of Bret Harte. The scenes and people of the Southwestern Frontier are pictured with a vividness and truth never surpassed if ever equalled.

A Critic's Opinion

Here is a writer who knows the life he describes thoroughly, and sees all its humorous, pathetic and tragic sides, and is yet able to describe it in a manner as picturesque and rich in new expression as Bret Harte ever used.

Mr. Lewis describes the last stand of the Frontier—a little strip of wild life remaining pinched between the civilization of the effete East and the Pacific Slope. And he has done his work thoroughly.

From the Preface.

The "Old Cattleman" is rude, storn-beat and of a shaggy roughness. Yet he is as well titled to a place in the circle of general appreciation as "Roger de Coverley" himself; he but runs the peril of my inability to draw him and display him as he is. At least the old fellow comes frankly before you; he strives not to bushwhack or trap a public interest.

From Wolfville Days.

"Wolfville is not at that time," the Old Cattleman continued, "what you—all East would call a swirlin' vortex of trade; still she has her marts. Thar's the copper mines, the Bird Cage Op'ry House, the Red Light, the O. K. Restawaw, the Dance Hall, the New York Store an' sim'lar hives of commerce. Which ondoubted the barkeeps is the hardest worked folks in camp, an' yet none of 'em ever goes on the warpath for shorter hours or longer pay, so far as I has notice."

"Don't make no mistaken notions about Wolfville bein' a idle an' a dangerous camp. Which on the contrary, Wolfville is shorely the home of justice, an' a squar' man gets a squar' game every time. Thar ain't no bad men 'round Wolfville, public sentiment bein' obdurate on that p'int.

REV. ABRAM H. LEWIS, (136.VIII, v p 100, Vol. VI), Plainfield, N. J.

FROM N. Y. MAIL AND EXPRESS.

Dr. Lewis first published his historical study of Sunday legislation, from pagan times to the present day, in 1888; in the present edition, called forth by recent events in this city, which have again made the question a "burning" one, he brings his book down to date, presenting a summary of Sunday legislation in the United States down to the present year.

The author points out that the present situation has "been evolved through the loss of religious regard for Sunday, compulsory idleness on Sunday and a system of legislation which has made the liquor traffic a great commercial and political power, protected and legalized on other days, but made criminal on Sunday," its day of richest harvest.

Dr. Lewis undoubtedly is right when he claims that with us Sunday legislation is still essentially a question of religion. The liquor problem, complicated as it is with politics, blackmail and considerations of political expediency, yet stands before the moral—i. e., largely the religious judgment of nation and state. And it will be well to leave it there to be dealt with. It is the ultimate court of all nations, safest of arbiters, unmindful of compromise and opportunism.

REV. FRANK F. LEWIS, (613.XLIV v p 91, Vol. XI), Syracuse, Neb.

FROM THE C. E. WORLD.

You see I had been a Christian for a year or two; at least, I thought I was; but, when they came to me to invite me to unite with the church, I always said, "No." One day the minister came to see me. He was a young fellow; but he had an earnest, quiet way with him that I liked. We were having a pleasant talk together, and after a while he said "Why don't you join the church?"....I had always despised the men who evaded their taxes and their duties as citizens, and here I was doing the same thing and shirking the Lord's work every day.

So I joined the church, and it was so easy that I am wondering every day why I did not do it before. I have a church home now, and there is a light and peace and joy in my heart that I never knew before.

HENRY H. LEWIS, Carthage, N. Y.

Some twelve years since I commenced the very pleasant and most interesting task of untangling the almost endless snarl of Lewises in my branch of the family tree, and I thought that surely our branch must bend very close to the earth under its abundance of fruit; but as I look over the other branches I see that they are all very heavily laden, and indeed, the tree must be, like its fruit, strong and sturdy to bear its heavy burden. My efforts were very successful and I met with no difficulty in tracing the lineage and have almost a complete record back to my great grandfather, Henry Lewis, son of Abraham Sr. But when I reached that joint the door seemed to be bolted very securely and no amount of pushing would cause it to turn up on its hinges. However I would not give up for I knew there must be some way to get through for you know the old proverb, "Where there's a will there is always a way" most always proves true; so I kept knocking and turning till at last Mr. Isaac Lewis of Morrison, Ill., and his sister, Mrs. Catharine Hall of Lafargeville, N. Y., gave me the secret place of the keys which I secured and then to my delight the door, which had been closed so long, swung upon its rusty hinges and stood wide open for me to pass through. Now can you guess what those keys were? They were the LEWIS LETTER now the LEWISIANA. Therefore do you wonder that I say, long live the paper which not only brings us in touch with each other, but keeps all, interested in the genealogy, posted in regard to the Lewis family. I don't see how any one, who is fortunate enough to bear the name Lewis or who has Lewis blood in their veins, can get along without it. I have before me Vols. I. and II. of the LEWIS LETTER and several volumes of the LEWISIANA and to say that I have been deeply interested in their contents does not express it in the slightest form. I have read and re-read all the historical part till I know it almost without the paper, and I have thought that were I situated thus, I would visit every place of historical interest connected with the Lewis family especially those of the vicinity of Westerly, Rhode Island. Then as I read of those old Lewis cemeteries, where our grand, noble, and beloved forefathers were laid, with nothing to distinguish one grave from another, the thought comes to me, why could not we as the direct descendants contribute our mites and erect a suitable monument sacred to the memory of those who bore the hardships and toil of the early days of the country by which we now enjoy so much in these modern times.

"LEWISIANA'S" SUGGESTION.

Reunion of a Famous Family at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

FROM THE WORLD'S FAIR BULLETIN.

LEWISIANA'S, "a monthly liter family paper," now in its twelfth volume, is a continuing record of the history of the Lewises of the United States, their genealogy, etc. It prints a list of one hundred and six Lewises who came to America from Wales, directly or indirectly, during the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries; and with the aid of the "Loyal Lewis Legion" it tries to keep a record of their descendants.----It offers this suggestion to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition officers:

"Why' not have a meeting of the Supreme Castle and all the enrolled members of the L. L. L., as well as of all the Lewises and their kin at St. Louis, Mo., in 1903? Etc., etc. v p 72 Vol. XII.

It may be remarked of this suggestion that a "Lewis Day" should bring to the World's Fair a gathering representing every county and township in the United States. Wales is not big enough to hold the citizens of the United States who bear distinctively Welsh names and are descendants of Welshmen.

[Now Lewises and fellow members of L. L. L. the suggestion has been made and seconded and has been favorably received at St. Louis, what do you think of it? Let each one write to-day Hon. D. R. Francis, President of the Exposition, urging the naming of a Lewis Day and expressing the hope of being present on that occasion.

--ED.]

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The list of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used. as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page; etc.

CHAPTER CCCLIV.

BY HENRY H. LEWIS, CARTHAGE, N. Y.

As this is the first chapter in my branch I will give the direct line of descendants down to where my records commence. John (1), John Jr. (3), Joseph (17), Abraham (56).

Henry (3194) was the 3d son of Abraham Sr. (56) b 1757. m Polly Jackson. They lived in Rensselaer co., where five children were born, when they moved to North Wilna, Jefferson co., about the year 1800. Three more children were born there. The writer now lives upon a portion of the land which Henry (3194) settled upon when he came to Jeff. co. The farm has been in possession of the Lewis family for the past hundred years. His wife, Polly Jackson, died in 1807, at the age of 38 years, and was buried on the farm not but a few rods from the writer's home. Henry had 1 ch. by a second wife; there is no record of m (3); he m (4) Mary McMillen. Land agents from Ohio came to Wilna, and Henry (3194) with his two oldest sons started for Ohio in the spring of 1826. They went into the wilds of Ohio settling near what is now Lagrange. CHAPTER CCXX.

FROM MARSHALL, MICH., CHRONICLE.

Died, at 3:15 A. M., Friday, Jan. 31st, 1902, at her home 318 Marshall Ave., Marshall, Mich., Celina Church Lewis, widow of the late Seth Lewis. (2 v p 91 Vol XI).

Celina Church was born Nov. 20th, 1822, at West Rush, Monroe Co., N. Y., the fifth child and third daughter of Robert and Elizabeth (Ennis) Church, who, in 1836, removed from New York state to the farm in Marengo township, Calhoun Co., Mich., still held in the family. Mrs. Lewis was descended in paternal line from Sergt. Richard Church who came to America in 1630 with Gov. Winthrop, and afterward married Elizabeth Warren, whose father, Richard Warren came in the Mayflower. She was married at her father's home Jan. 5th, 1842, to Seth Lewis, who came from Strykersville, Genesee Co., N. Y., to the village of Marshall and in 1839, founded the Western Statesman (three years later changed to the Marshall Statesman) which was owned and published by the Lewis family for nearly fifty-three years. Seth and Celina Church Lewis were the parents of three children, Will R., Eber C., and Edwin S.; Eber died in infancy. Seth Lewis died Aug. 8th, 1879, and Mrs. Lewis continued to reside in the old home which it was her pride to say she had occupied continuously since Dec. 3d, 1846.

Mrs. Lewis is survived by her two sons, Will R., of this city, and Edwin S., of Elba, Neb., also by nine grandchildren and two great grandchildren. Her sons were with her during her last illness, realizing that the years which bring physical and mental decline bring also tender release. Caring little for society, Mrs. Lewis was in every sense a homemaker, and will be missed as friend, sister, and above all as mother.

FROM THE BOSTON TRANSCRIPT.

Thomas (9 v p 7 Vol VII) b June 2, 1663 m Mary Breed (Allen. Allen, Sr) b Aug. 24, 1664.

Mrs. Frances Lewis Wilson, writes "When my grandfather, Thomas Lewis, died, about the beginning of the last war with England, there were only two carriages in that city, as I have been told, one of which belonged to Governor Hancock; and the other to Mr. Abiel Smith, who married my great aunt, Lydia Otis, a relative of our well-known patriot, James Otis. When my grandfather died Mrs. Smith placed her carriage at the disposal of his widow, Sarah Merry Lewis, for the funeral. And my father's visit of thanks for courtesies rendered his mother won the heart of Mrs. Smith, and led to the speedy marriage with my father in 1813.

CHAPTER CLXII.

WHERE ROLLS THE OREGON.

FROM THE PORTLAND OREGONIAN.

The inspiring cause of the Philadelphia Centennial was the far-reaching effect of the colonial act of '76; at Chicago it was the new world growing out of the discovery of Columbus; at St. Louis it will be the increase of the National domain as the result of the Louisiana purchase; the Lewis and Clark Centennial at Portland claims a theme for its inspiration that will call for spontaneous outbursts of National enthusiasm. The celebration of this centennial will commemorate one of the greatest achievements in American history. * * * The importance of this section of country added to the possessions of the Nation as the direct result of the trip of Captain Meriwether Lewis and Captain William Clark, with the party in charge of these gallant officers to Oregon in 1805, makes in itself a sufficient cause for holding a world exposition in Portland on the centennial anniversary of this event.

CHAPTER CLXIII.

AN INTERESTING ANNOUNCEMENT.

MERIWETHER LEWIS (64) JOURNALS.

An interesting feature of the centennial of the "Louisiana Purchase" will be the publication of the exact text of the journals of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, which are now in possession of the American Philosophical Society of Philadelphia. It is a fact not generally known that although these journals have formed the basis for many published accounts of the expedition, they have never been made public in their actual form. In view of the centennial of the "Louisiana Purchase" (by which the United States came into possession of the great valley of the Missouri,) which is to be commemorated by the St. Louis Exposition, in 1903, and the Oregon Centennial of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, to be celebrated in 1905, Dodd, Mead & Co. have made arrangements with the society which owns the journals for their publication for the first time, exactly word for word, as written. This new and authoritative edition is to be edited by Reuben Gold Thwaites, of the Wisconsin Historical Society, and it bids fair to supersede even the scholarly work edited by the late Professor Elliot Cones, published a few years ago, the basis of whose edition was the old, incomplete edition of 1814, prepared under the direction of Nicholas Biddle. Dr. Cones did not even know of the existence of the manuscript journals until his work was nearly completed and ready for the press, and comparatively little use was made of them.

CHAPTER CLXV.

FROM THE NASHVILLE AMERICAN.

(REPORT OF COMMITTEE.)

"The inscription upon the plinth was furnished by Prof. Nathaniel Cross, of the University of Nashville. It is placed on the different sides of the plinth and is as follows:

"Meriwether Lewis, born near Charlottesville, Virginia, August 18, 1774; died October 17, 1809; aged 35 years; an officer of the Regular Army—Private Secretary to President Jefferson—Commander of the Expedition to the Oregon in 1803-1806—Governor of the Territory of Louisiana—his melancholy death occurred where this monument now stands, and under which rests his mortal remains. In the language of Mr. Jefferson: His courage was undaunted, his firmness and perseverance yielded to nothing but impossibilities; a rigid disciplinarian, yet tender as a father to those committed to his charge, honest, disinterested, liberal with a sound understanding and a scrupulous fidelity to truth.

"Immaturus obi: sed tu felicior annos

"Vive meos, Bona Republica! Vive tuos.

"Erected by the Legislature of Tennessee, A. D. 1848."

"In the Latin distich many of your honorable body will no doubt recognize as the affecting epitaph on the tomb of a young wife, in which, by a prosopopoeia, after alluding to her immature death she prays that her happier husband may live out her years and his own.

"Immaturo peri; sed tu felicior annos Vive meos, conjux optime! vive tuos."

"Under the same figure the deceased is represented in the Latin distich as altered, after alluding to his early death, as uttering as a patriot a similar prayer, that the republic may fulfill her high destiny, and that her years may equal those of time. As the distich now stands, the figure may be made to apply, either to the whole Union, or to Tennessee that has honored his memory by the erection of a monument.

CHAPTER IX.

FROM BIOG. CYCLO., OF PENN.

At that time the war with England was in progress and the passage was by no means secure. Fortunately for Mr. Lewis [William David (13) v p. 186 Vol. XI], he obtained the appointment of private secretary to a commission created to treat with England on neutral territory at St. Petersburg. They sailed from New York, Feb. 27, 1814, and after a tempestuous voyage reached Gottenburg, Apr. 14. Thence they crossed the Gulf of Bothnia on the ice, and travelled post through Finland to St. Petersburg, at that time full of excitement at the news that the allies had triumphed over Napoleon. He at once devoted himself to the acquisition of the Russian tongue, and for that purpose spent some time in Moscow and Iver on the Volga, being hospitably received by the best society in those cities. He then entered his brother's house, and except one year passed in making the tour of Western Europe, and two business visits to the U. S., continued a resident of the Russian capital until August 1824, when he returned permanently to his native land. As a literary record of his sojourn in Russia he subsequently published a small volume of metrical translations from the Russian poets, entitled The Bachesarian Fountain, being the first translation from that tongue ever published by an American. On his return he engaged in the importing and commission business, in which he continued until 1832, when he was elected cashier of the Girard Bank, which position he retained until it went into liquidation, in 1842. The railroad system early attracted his attention. He was a director in the New Castle and Frenchtown Railroad, built in 1831, believed to be the second road on which locomotives were employed to carry passengers. The engines were built by Stephenson & Co., in England, none at that time being constructed in this country. He was also one of the first directors of the Philadelphia, Germantown and Norristown Railroad, and of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad.
