GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chap- ters. At the head of each Book ap- pears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brack- ets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used: as b. for born: d. died: m. married; m. (1) first wife: dau. daughter: un- m. not married: v. p. see page, etc.

Hints for Contributors.

In writing matter for the printer use only one side of the sheet, note paper preferred. In giving dates, give year, month and day whenever known. Write all middle names in full. Give names and addresses of such people as you think may be able to complete the record but get it yourself if possible and spare the editor. Old newspaper files, tomb stones, family Bibles and records, official records of the town, school and church, burial certificates, county and probate records, old deeds and letters are some of the more im- portant sources of information. Don't forget however the stores of informa- tion which the old people can give— Get them interested and then "pump them dry." Most important of all, don't get discouraged yourself. How can you interest others, if you your- self are not alive with enthusiasm?

Family Record Questions.

2. When and where born?
3. When and where married and by whom?

9. What is your occupation?
10. When and where educated?
11. What public office have you held?
12. What service in army or navy?
13. What traditions in your family?
14. Give any interesting events in family history.
15. Names of your children with places and dates of birth.
16. If they are married answer questions 3 to 15 inclusive for them.
17. Dates of death for ch. dying unm.
18. Names of your brothers and sisters with dates of birth and as much more of their family history as you can give or obtain from them the complete record.

JOHN LEWIS, Westerly, R. I., 1661.

CHAPTER CCXCII.

FROM THE NEW HAVEN, CT., LEADER.

There were over 1,000 persons present at the testimonial concert and presentation to Principal John G. Lewis (v p 66 Vol. IX) of the Webster school on Wednesday evening, May 24, 1899, at Music hall and it was an interesting and profitable occasion for all concerned and the veteran teacher has reason to feel proud of the kind remembrances of his former pupils. He was presented with a check of $700 which represents subscriptions from a few friends and admirers that are wealthy, but much of it represents small subscriptions of his former pupils irrespective of their condition in life, who wished to testify their appreciation of the man who has for forty years been in continuous service and still is as principal of the Webster school.

The exercises opened with an address by Postmaster James A. Howarth, who also presided over the meeting. He spoke in eulogy of Principal Lewis and said that he was a man who in his long and useful life had done more for public schools than any other man. His address was vigorously applauded. Then a chorus of voices from the class of '99 led by Professor Jepson sang "Come let us be Happy." Next C. J. Bushnell of New York rendered a vocal solo. Donald McLane, a solo on the violin, and Miss Lydia A. Kraft, a selection on the piano, all of which were heartily applauded. As the next speaker Mr. Howarth introduced Superintendent Calvin N. Kendall. Mr. Kendall said that he considered the present occasion a unique one not only in the history of New Haven schools, but also of the American school system. That a teacher could during 40 years continue to teach in the same school and win the love and affection of his pupils and retain unbounded respect after they had grown to manhood and womanhood, he considered remarkable. Mr. Lewis, he said, never wearies of telling of the success of this boy or that girl who has graduated from the old school. And by the way, Mr. Asher related Mr. Lewis' remarkable memory of the names of all the pupils who had come under his instruction. He knew something of the subsequent history of them all, too, and delighted to speak of them.

The John G. Lewis Association was then organized with James A. Howarth class of 1864, as President.

A vocal solo by Miss Kate A. Hofer completed the musical part of the program, and Lawyer Harry W. Asher of the board of education, and himself an old Webster school boy, presented Mr. Lewis with a testimonial of the esteem in which he was held by all present in the form of a check for $700. In presenting the gift he spoke of the great work which had been done by Mr. Lewis, and on behalf of all his former pupils wished him the best of health and success in his advancing years.

Principal Lewis was much affected. He expressed his thanks for the munificent gift and his appreciation of their kind remembrances.

He said among other things: "I knew you all as children, and I know you just the same now that you are grown up. I can see many of you, when boys and girls, in your seats and at your recitations. I know your traits of manner and your traits of character. Of my regard for you, you need no assurance from me. For your testimonial you have my hearty thanks for this gathering words cannot express my feelings. All of you I count as my lifelong and trusty friends. Not every man has such friends: not every man can count them for forty years. I want to take every one of you by the hand and wish you all Godspeed."

Among the speakers who related reminiscences of their career in Webster school was L. K. Gould of Bridgeport, a lawyer, of the firm of Gould & Traey in that city, who attended Webster school more than 30 years ago. He said that perhaps another instance could not be found where so many of a principal's old pupils could thus gather from all sections and testify their love and affection as had been done in this case. And he for one was glad to be able to say what had been done for him by the faithfulness and untiring work of Mr. Lewis, whom all loved and respected.

After many impromptu speeches by former pupils the program was concluded by the singing of a song specially written for the occasion by a friend. At the conclusion of the exercises there was quite a reunion of old friends in the hall and Mr. Lewis had to shake the hands of dozens of his old pupils who paid him many compliments and expressed many good wishes.

CHAPTER. CLXVI.

FROM BENNINGTON, VT. " MENTAL REPAST."

One Mr. Lewis, [Levi (954) v p 183, Vol. IX], a tanner in Wells, was engaged in the concerns of his calling, his horse at the same time being in his mill grinding bark. The wheel drawn by the horse was very wide, proportionately high, and above a ton in weight. It was made of wood, and filled with long and hard cogs, or trunnions, for the breaking of the bark. His child, a boy of two or three years of age [Levi (1268) Ed.] had followed him out and, unobservedly, got within the circle of the wheel, near the stake. Soon after, the child in attempting to get out to his father, was knocked down by the shaft and the ponderous wheel ran over his head and crushed it in a dreadful manner. Two skillful surgeons were immediately sent for, and soon arrived; the child lay apparently almost lifeless, his breathing was scarcely perceptible. On examination, the skull was found to be much fractured behind, by one of the cogs, and over one eye by another: from the fracture behind, several pieces of loose bone were taken out and nearly a spoonful of the brain removed from the wound. The opinion of the surgeons was, death must inevitably, and speedily ensue and therefore, to attempt to trepan the skull would be but to give pain, without the most distant prospect of reaping any advantage.

The wounds were, therefore, only cleansed in the most tender manner; and without hope, the afflicted parents and sympathetic neighbors attended, expecting every moment the child would breathe his last. Its breathing, however became more and more perceptible, till at length he opened his eyes and asked his mother for something to eat. He accordingly received food, and was apparently refreshed thereby. Nature, the handmaid of Heaven, wrought a surprising work in his favor, and he is now apparently healthy, active, and sensible as the children in general in the neighborhood of his residence. [He lived to good old age.—Ed.]

FROM NEW HAVEN, CT. REGISTER.

In Southington, Conn. of old age m Saturday night, May 27, 1899 Mrs. Nancy Root Potter (1104 v p 38, Vol. IX) ae 98 years and 24 days. The last of her four ch (2 sons and 2 daus.) died in 1852.

Dr. Root, her father, witnessed service in the war with Great Britain for the independence of the 13 original colonies. This made Nancy a "true daughter" of the Revolution, and as such she was elected an honorary member of Hannah Woodruff Chapter, D. A. R. when the chapter organized two years ago. Owing to her inability to attend the meetings of the chapter, the chapter met with her at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Kilborne, with whom she has resided for many years. Mrs. Potter had lost none of her faculties, being able to see without glasses, could hear quite distinctly, showing no effort in carrying on a conversation of 20 minutes or more.

She said that years ago she had rheumatism. That, she claimed to have outgrown. Her birthday anniversaries have always been observed in a befitting manner of late years, and in them she found a great deal of enjoyment. Her death was peaceful, being most certainly due to old age, as a week ago Saturday she fell off into a peaceful sleep, and for 8 days she calmly slept, no nourishment passing her lips.

FROM GENEALOGY OF THE LEWIS FAMILY BY WM. TERRELL LEWIS.

Charles Crawford (73 v p 88 Vol. IV) b in Albemarle Co. Va. in 1761. was a hatter by trade. He emigrated to Rutherford Co. N. C. with his father before the Revolutionary war, and settled on Mountain Creek, four miles west of Rutherfordton. When the Revolutionary war commenced he was only fourteen years of age, but after he arrived at a proper age was in the service. It is not known how long he served in the army as he never applied for a pension. After his death the following certificate (now filed in the archives of the War Department at Washington) was found among his papers, which together with other living evidence, enabled his widow to prove his services and to draw a pension:

This is to certify that Charles Lewis,

Sergeant, has faithfully served out his tour of three months, in General Lillington's brigade, to the southward.

He acted as a magistrate for some years in Rutherford Co. N. C. after which he was elected in 1798 as a member of the Legislature and only served one term. It was the only time that he aspired to that office. He was afterward elected, during life or good behaviour, to the office of register of the county, which office he held upward of thirty years, until about the time of his death, which occurred in 1833 on the same farm upon which he had settled before the Revolution.

FROM YALE ALUMNI WEEKLY.

Charlton Miner Lewis (5 v p 186, Vol. IX) was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 4, 1866. His father, Charlton T. Lewis, (3 v p 106 Vol. IX) a graduate of Yale in the Class of Fifty-Three, is a prominent lawyer of New York, and a philologist. He is a descendant of an old New England family.

Professor Lewis, while at college won the Hurlbut Scholarship in Freshman year, took first premiums in English Composition in Sophomore year, was a member of the Chi Delta Theta and Phi Beta Kappa, and was an editor of the Literary Magazine. He was a member of the Junior Society of Psi Upsilon and the Senior Society of Skull and Bones. Upon his graduation in 1886, he spent a year in graduate study of History and Political Science at Yale, then two years at the Columbia Law School, from which he received the degree of LL.D. in 1889. He was at once admitted to the New York Bar, and, in 1890, became connected with the law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell of New York City, where he remained until the fall of 1894, at which time he was called to an instructorship in the University. He took up his work here in September, 1895, after a year of preparatory study in New York City. He received the degree of Ph.D. from Yale in the summer of 1898, and at the same time was made Assistant Professor.

WILLIAM LEWIS, 1735, Chester, Pa.

CHAPTER I.

BY MARY J. LONGNECKER, ALLENTOWN, PA.

The following taken mainly from account of one of our local papers at time of my father's death contains all that we know of our line.

Samuel Lewis (v p 80 Vol. VIII) one of the pioneers of the iron industry of this country was of Scotch-Irish ancestry. The first of the family to come to this country was William Lewis, the grandfather of the subject of this sketch, who landed on these shores in 1735 and located in East Nantmeal township, Chester county, on a property now known as the Isaac VanLeer farm. There Samuel Lewis, the father of the deceased, was born and raised and there also was born Samuel Lewis, Jr. His father moved from the VanLeer farm when Mr. Lewis was 7 years old to the Springtown forge farm, along the Brandywine, in Chester county, and operated the Four Fire Forge. His father died when Samuel was 17 years old and during the days of his boyhood he learned considerable of the forge business. His father manufactured iron for the use of the Continental army and also supplied iron for the soldiers of the war of 1812. The mother of the deceased with her own hands wove blankets for the use of the soldiers who fought during the war.

Fourteen girls, the largest class graduated in the history of Mrs. and Miss Cady's school, will receive their diplomas in June 1899. For the first time too in the school's long history are the graduates all New Haven Ct. girls. Among them is Margaret Russell Lewis whose essay is "Mrs. Browning's Eve".... Wm. Hand-Book of Metallurgy.—By Dr. Carl Schnable. Translated by Henry Lewis, M.A. Vol. I., Copper, Lead, Silver and Gold. Vol. II., Zinc, Cadmium, Mercury, Bismuth, Tin, Antimony, Arsenic, Nickel, Cobalt, Platinum, Aluminum. London and New York, The Macmillan Company. 927 illustrations.

It is a curious fact that there does not exist in the English language a single complete treatise on metallurgy. Such being the position in regard to the literature of the subject, the translator has rendered the English speaking metallurgist a distinct service in translating the most recent and exhaustive work on the subject in any language, from the pen of an eminent metallurgical authority.

The skeletons of two Indians were unearthed at Gildersleeve, Ct. recently. The place where they were found was on a hill near the river, and it is thought that this hill was once used as an Indian burying ground. A great many Indian relics have been found in this vicinity at various times, and some years ago, when John Lewis was excavating for the cellar for his residence near this place, he found several skeletons and some old relics.

Frederick Lewis of Manhattan, who with his brother, leases the shooting privileges on Smith's Point, reported some pretty lively duck shooting this spring. The East Bay was still frozen over, and Smith's Point was the eastern limit of the open water of the Great South Bay. He improved the feeding grounds by stewing corn, and the black ducks came to the decoys like chickens when he opened his season. His guides' were Will Rose and Dan Havens, and he bagged fifty-three black ducks and eight broadbill. He said the ducks cost him just $8 each in expenses, but it was sport.
