Who's Who and Why's Why.

In the second edition (1901-2) of Who's Who in America the editor has regarded 26 members of the Lewis name as worthy to be included in the list of living "men and women of achievement." The fact that of these twenty-six who make the name famous to-day only two have interest enough in the name to subscribe to LEWISIANA tells in a word why our paper's subscription just about holds its own year after year when it ought to grow. There is material enough for a larger monthly issue but the subscribers to balance the extra expense are wanting. We might just as well have been named Smith or Jones if the name Lewis is not worth to every possessor of it a dollar a year for the privilege of being kept posted on all that concerns "the tribes of Lewises."

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used.

CHAPTER XL.

FROM DETROIT EVENING NEWS.

Hon. J. Willard Babbitt, one of the best known and ablest members of the Washtenaw county bar, died suddenly yesterday (Nov. 8, 1901) afternoon at his home in this city. Unusually vigorous for a man of his age, his death was a surprise and shock, especially to his business associates with whom he had been at work less than two hours before the end.

In 1866 he married at Port Huron Miss Florence Lewis Smalley (v p 70 Vol. X) who has won a prominent position in fraternal, army and historical societies and in charitable work throughout the state. Mrs. Babbitt and four daughters survive him—Nora C. Babbitt of Ypsilanti, and Nan P. Babbitt of Kearney, Neb.; Alice, Mrs. Eugene B. Bennett of Hartford and Florence, Mrs. I. M. Perrine of Ypsilanti.

FROM THE YPSILANTIAN.

John Willard Babbitt was born in Gorham, N. Y., Nov. 21, 1836. His grandfather and father had been physicians in Vermont and prominent men in their community. The family came to Ypsilanti in 1848, and the son attended the schools here until 1858, when he went to Geneva, N. Y., to study law with his uncle, Calvin Walker. In 1861 he returned to Michigan and graduated from the law school of the university in 1862. He served in the commissary department of the army until 1865. Judge Babbitt held various offices of trust. He was city clerk of Ypsilanti from 1869 to 1877, then circuit court commissioner for eight years, then prosecuting attorney, and in 1888 was elected judge of probate, and in 1892 re-elected to that important office. Had he chosen to exert himself in the political field he could easily have secured still higher honors. He was a man of rare literary gifts and might have won fame as a humorous writer. But he preferred to devote his energies chiefly to his profession, and probably no other lawyer in the state was more deeply versed in the intricacies of the law. He was a constant student, and his library was continually in service.

CHAPTER CCLXXVII.

FROM ST. THOMAS DAILY TIMES.

In St. Thomas, Ontario, Dec. 12, 1901, at the residence of J. C. Livesey, occurred the death of Mrs. Mary Lewis in the 80th year of her age. The deceased had resided in Fingal for many years before removing to St. Thomas, about four years ago. Her husband died in Fingal several years ago. Mrs. Lewis' death was caused by a complication of diseases. Mrs. Lewis was one of the best known and most highly respected residents in the county of Elgin. The funeral takes place from the residence of W. R. Jackson to Fingal cemetery on Saturday afternoon.

The deceased was born in the State of Vermont in the year 1822 and moved with her parents to the State of Michigan in the year 1829. She came to Canada with her brother, Walter Hoyt, in the year 1845, and was married to Chauncey Lewis (1609) in the year 1848. Deceased had a wide circle of friends, many of her relatives living in the Western and Southern States. Mrs. Lewis had been connected with the Methodist church for over sixty years, and was well known for her devotion and spiritual work. Her life was an exemplary one, and her deep interest in the welfare of all with whom she became acquainted will endear and cherish her memory in the hearts of her friends.

HERE AND THERE IN THE FAMILY.

In New Britain, Ct., at her home, 224 Beaver st., on Dec. 13, 1901; Ellen A. Lewis ae. 56 years 4 months. She was the second wife of George F. Lewis (1182 v p 92 Vol. XII), caretaker at Shuttle Meadow. Her health has been failing for some time.

Thomas C. Lewis (1014 v p 164 Vol. X) is secretary of the Geo. H. Ford Co., Jewellers, New Haven, Ct. The house is one that the city points to with pride. It is complete in every detail, resourceful, adequate to the most exacting demands and its name on an article is an affidavit of indisputable value. The company has its own factory and designers, and countless bits of exclusive models are produced that have made the imprint of the company a name of national fame.

Officers of the Second Regiment and the Second Company, Governor's Foot Guards, are planning the organization of a military club with headquarters and a clubhouse in New Haven. It is proposed to include in the membership commissioned officers, active or retired, of the army, navy and National Guard of Connecticut and other states as well.

Lieutenant (J. G.) Frederick P. Lewis, Adjutant N. B., C. N. G., (453 v p 119 Vol. XI) is the originator of the club idea which is outlined on the plans of the Army and Navy Club, of New York, which has among its members many of the most distinguished sailor and soldier officers.

CHAPTER CLII.

FROM THE TRUE THOMAS JEFFERSON.

It was Jefferson who sent Meriwether

Lewis (64) and William Clarke [no "e" is the correct spelling. ED.] to the sources of the Missouri, across the Rocky Mountains to the Columbia River, and down the Columbia until they reached the Pacific. Counting from the time when Captain John Smith sailed up the Chickahominy in search of the South Sea, the world had waited two hundred years for the knowledge they brought back. Never was a piece of work of that kind better done or better chronicled. Jefferson selected the two heroes who conducted it. Captain Lewis was his own private secretary, the son of one of his most esteemed Albemarle neighbors. Lieutenant Clarke was a brother of General George Rogers Clarke, who kept the Indians from aiding the British in the War of the Revolution. Both were masters of the frontier arts, so that the perilous expedition of two years and a half was to them a holiday excursion. (One wonders if Wm. E. Curtis has ever glanced at the journals of this expedition. ED.) Returning to St. Louis laden with spoils and trophies, Captain Lewis, besides his journals and other official results, sent the President "sixty-seven specimens of earth, salt and mineral, and sixty specimens of plants."

CHAPTER CLV.

FROM HISTORY OF THE RISE AND PROGRESS OF THE ARTS OF DESIGN IN U. S. 1834.

I had become acquainted at Williamson's (Norfolk, Va.) with a very fine young man by the name of Douthat, who had married a lovely woman, and was settled on a fine plantation up James River, near the house of his father-in-law, Mr. Lewis [Fielding (83 v p 138 Vol. IX.) son of Col. Warner (58) and Eleanor (Bowles) Lewis of Warner Hall. Robert Douthat m his dau. Eleanor (466) ED.] the proprietor of Wyanoke, famous in early Virginia history. I had promised Douthat to visit Westover, the name of his residence. The next day we proceeded by water to Wyanoke, the plantation of Mr. Lewis.

This place, so well known in our early history, is nearly surrounded by the waters of the James River. At the time of my visit it formed a model for a well-cultivated Virginia plantation, as worked by slave labor, under a wise and humane master. . . . At Wyanoke all was in high cultivation and perfect order. The overseer was intelligent and was directed by the master. The house servants, though occupying a building separate from the mansion, as is the case on the plantations, and even in many instances in the towns of Virginia, were orderly and fully employed in the duties imposed by the owner's hospitality. I had lived well all my life and certainly the luxuries of Norfolk, and good cheer at my friends Williamson did not mislead me in my estimate of the living at Wyanoke and Westover, but I could not avoid looking with surprise at the well-covered table, especially at breakfast, where the varieties of hot breads of the finest kind exceeded anything I had met with. Indian corn bread in three or four shapes, all excellent; buckwheat cakes; cakes of different kinds made of the best wheat flour in the world, and loaf bread of the same, all hot and all as perfect in the cooking as the material, and all this as accompaniment to the fish, flesh and fowl and the usual liquid beverage of the breakfast table.

Westover, is like Wyanoke, a presque isle. The estate had been recently purchased by Mr. Robert Donthat. The house had originally been the most splendid probably on the river, and was still a magnificent mansion. In the garden is a marble monumental ornament, with sculptured urns, shields and coats-of-arms; and an inscription commemorating the Hon. William Byrd, former owner of this and other great estates in Virginia.

At Wyanoke was a son of Chief Justice Marshall, and his wife, a daughter of Mr. Lewis [Margaret (465) in Thomas Marshall v p 136 Vol. X. ED.], with occasionally other visitors. I remained among these hospitable and excellent people, sometimes at Donthat's and sometimes at Lewis's until the 7th of March, and painted several portraits.

CHAPTER CLVI.

HERE AND THERE IN THE FAMILY.

John Taylor Lewis (646 v p 74 Vol. IX.) has been appointed to represent the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. Co. in Brazil.

Mr. Lewis has held several diplomatic positions for the United States.

He was vice and deputy consul-general to Rio Janeiro for two years, and, during that period, became acquainted with the fore most citizens of Brazil.

He speaks Portuguese, the language most generally used in Brazil. His mission will be to induce the government and the manufacturers to be extensively represented at the St. Louis Exposition.

Mr. Lewis is 35 years of age, and a native of Mecklenburg County, Va.

CHAPTER CLVII.

FROM THE NASHVILLE AMERICAN MERIWETHER LEWIS.

The body of this distinguished man lay undisturbed in its final resting place for many years, and no action was taken by the nation or the State towards erecting a monument to perpetuate in stone or brass the memory of his heroic life, which has been brilliantly summed up by his chief and great friend, Thomas Jefferson. In 1845 the General Assembly of this State passed an act to create a new county "to be composed of fractions taken from the counties of Maury, Lawrence, Wayne and Hickman, and to be known and designated by the name of Lewis County, in honor of Capt. Merrewither (note the spelling) Lewis, who had rendered distinguished services to his country, and whose remains lie buried and neglected within its limits."

This county was established and for several years it was the only recognition that had been taken of the distinguished man. On Feb. 4, 1848, the General Assembly of this State passed an act regulating certain court matters and other things pertaining to Lewis County, and the ninth section contained the following provision: "That the sum of $500 be, and the same is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury, not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to preserve the place of interment where the remains of Gen. Meriwether Lewis were deposited, and that Robert A. Smith, of the County of Lewis Hon. Edmund Dillahunt and Barclay Martin of Maury County, and Dr. Samuel B. Moore, of Hickman County, be, and are hereby made the agents of this General Assembly to carry into execution the provisions of this act, and report to the next General Assembly."

FAMOUS NEW YORK FAMILIES.

The younger son, Morgan (3 b 154) was a duplicate of his illustrious father. He was graduated from Princeton with high honors in 1773, his college chum being James Madison. Ancestral influences had given him a strong inclination for the pulpit, but his father, perceiving the trend of the boy's abilities, induced him to prepare for the bar. He began his legal studies, but was soon diverted from his work by the political excitement of the time. In 1774 he foresaw hostilities, and began to learn the military tactics of the time. In 1775 he joined a volunteer company, and with it went to increase the colonial forces at Boston. The same year, when just twenty-one, he was made major. In June he became chief of staff to Gen. Gates, with the brevet of colonel. In the winter he was made quartermaster-general. He remained in active service during the entire war, proving one of the best soldiers in the Continental army. He won the confidence and affection of nearly all the generals, and more especially of Washington. At the close of the conflict he retired from the army and resumed the legal studies which had been broken off eight years before, but he had won too large a place in the public heart to escape distinction. He was made colonel of a regiment of militia in New York city, and marched at its head at the first inaugural of George Washington.

CHAPTER LXXXVIII.

FROM GEN. AND HIST. DEPT. OF THE N. Y. EVENING POST.

No. 4,738 (Answer.)—John Lewis (407) came from England with one or more brothers before the Revolution. It is believed that he was the nephew of the celebrated John Lewis (1) who came to Virginia in 1720; it is believed that he was the son of the Lewis who was murdered at his brother's house near Dublin, Ireland. He came to Baltimore, Md., some time prior to 1760, and then was over thirty years old. He married in 1767 or '68 and lived but a few years. His widow Ann Maria Cromwell Lewis, was born in Baltimore county in 1747, and died in 1835. She was a descendant of a grandson of the uncle of the lord protector. The issue from her marriage to John Lewis was a son Nathan (408) who died during an epidemic of yellow fever in 1797, leaving one son, Joseph Nathan Lewis (409) who married Priscilla Gover Smith, born September 12, 1800. They had seven sons, all deceased.

FROM THE PUBLISHER'S CIRCULAR.

An old and highly respected townsman, who for close upon half-a-century carried on business as a printer and bookseller in High Street, Portsmouth, has passed away.

The late Mr. Henry Lewis, b Sept. 24, 1819, d West Ashling, near Chichester, Aug. 30, 1901, served his apprenticeship in the printing office of Mr. David Brent Preece, who carried on business in premises facing the Grand Parade. At the expiration of his apprenticeship Mr. Lewis went to London, where he was employed in several large houses, gaining experience, which he found of great value when, in 1850, he took over the business at No. 114 High Street, formerly carried on by Mr. Comerford.

Under his able and judicious management there was steady and continuous development in the several departments. A thorough master of the technique of Caxton's art, Mr. Lewis gained a deservedly high reputation for the excellence of the work which was sent out from his establishment. In addition to being a first-rate man of business, he possessed literary gifts of no mean order. He was for some years the Portsmouth correspondent of the Hampshire Advertiser, which then devoted considerable space to the doings of this borough, and his discharge of the duties of that post was thoroughly appreciated by the proprietor; he was also an occasional contributor to the columns of the London Times and the Hampshire Telegram. In 1897, Mr. Lewis retired.
