HENRY JOHN LEWIS,

descended from some of the oldest and most influential families of Virginia and New York, the great grandson of Gen. Andrew Lewis, the noted Indian fighter of Virginia, the grandson of Col. Thomas Lewis, an officer of the Revolution, and the son of James Bradley Lewis, a soldier of the war of 1812, was born at Tapps Ridge, Switzerland Co., Ind., Dec. 17, 1831. After the death of his father when he was about 11 years old, his mother with the four children, Richard, Maria, Henry and Harvey, moved to Louisville. He, after working at the carpenter's trade for a few years, started the old "Tenth St. Planing Mill" in 1859 and no firm is better known in all Kentucky than H. J. Lewis & Bro.

Mr. Lewis belonged to the old Volunteer Fire Co. and was elected to the City Council when he was only 21. He was a Mason and a member of the Odd Fellows and Knights of Honor. An officer in the M. E. Church South for over 30 years, he was a true Christian in every sense of the word and no one stood higher or was more respected among the citizens of Louisville. He died July 16, 1895, and is buried in Cave Hill Cemetery.

He married, May 8, 1856, Adelaide B. Turner, a descendant of John Turner of the Mayflower and also of the Hooker, Newton, Merwin and Mallet families of Connecticut. Inscriptions to four of her ancestors are on the memorial bridge at Milford, Conn.

Studying Our Ancestry.

The New England Historic—Genealogical Society celebrated its fiftieth anniversary in Boston recently. The progress of the society and its vitality are proof that our people have a growing interest in the study of their lineage. The society's great collection of town and county histories and family genealogies is consulted by thousands of persons every year in search of missing links in their family record. Most American families begin their genealogical tree with the stout-hearted immigrant who crossed the ocean, forgetting to bring his family record with him. His oversight it is impossible to make good in most cases, and it is of no great consequence in any case; but from the date of his arrival it ought to be possible to trace the lineage of every family. Wherever it cannot be done, the family or public records are defective or destroyed. The trouble and perplexity occasioned by these defects should teach every family, every township and municipality the importance of making and preserving the records of births, marriages and deaths. An astonishing negligence still prevails in these matters, which coming generations will deplore, and for which there is no excuse. The study of the family genealogy is profitable and entertaining. To trace back the links in the chain of descent suggests an approximation to universal kinship. The progenitors of every person directly represent four families in his grandparents; these four families widen out into eight in the third generation; and so continuing by geometrical progression until in the eighth generation, which will cover the American genealogy of the majority of our native-born citizens, it contains an array of two hundred and fifty-six direct ancestors, the accumulation of about two hundred years. The genealogical tree is thus a veritable banyan, and its roots bind us to the present as well as the past. To know its trunk branches is all that is possible to most of us; but that is enough to lead us far into the nooks and crannies of early New England life and to open to us the inner history of the beginnings of our social and political structure. From a better knowledge of our family history will come a fuller appreciation of the privileges and blessings of to-day.—Youth's Companion.

America Acquiring a History.

There are not wanting cheering signs that the people of the United States are acquiring a history and are conscious of, and therefore worthy of, that fact. Since this people passed the century mark in their national existence a respectable number of other anniversaries, some of them of peculiar dignity and interest, have been celebrated. Every one of these, from the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the colonization of Guilford, Conn., by forty planters from the yeomanry of England and its large following crop of similar New England observances, to the late world's fair Columbian exposition, every one of these occasions has contributed its part to the growth in the popular realization that this country is really beginning to have a past.

There are varied manifestations of this national consciousness. A somewhat general and quite admissible, and, in fact, very useful, manifestation in the growing taste for genealogy, as evidenced by the rage for the conversion of the old-time family tree into what is now called the family book. Guilford, the town above instanced, had, until half a dozen years ago, its genealogist in the person of Dr. Alvan Talcott, a notable scholar as well as physician, who had devoted the leisure of an extraordinarily prolonged country practice to the creation of a remarkable manuscript genealogical volume containing the co-related records of every descendant of the town's forty original settlers up to the date of Dr. Talcott's death in 1889. . . .

Yet another and still more useful outcome of what might be called this growing historical sense is its materialization into magazine literature. Within a couple of years the Evening Telegram has already performed the pleasant office of welcoming the advent of two historical magazines and it now welcomes the third. The earlier ones were the American Monthly, issued in Washington, D. C., and the American Historical Register, published at Philadelphia. Now comes the Colonial Magazine, published at New York.—N. Y. Evening Telegram.

Nuts to Crack.

Frequently there are found references to Lewises who have been of prominence in their day or who have done some noteworthy deed whose ancestry or descent is unknown. In the hope of solving some of these this department of our paper is commenced. Occasionally clippings and extracts will be given, containing references to some one of our name, which hardly come under the head of Queries. Answers will appear either in this column or under their proper place among the "Books," the tribes of the Lewises.

Centennial Anniversary.

In the historical address at the commemorative exercises of the Whitneyville, Ct., Congregational Church it was stated that an ecclesiastical council convened on the 8th of March, 1791, at the house of Captain Caleb Mix in Hamden, "by desire of a number of the inhabitants of that place in order to give them advice and assistance in forming them into a particular church." There "were present Rev. Benjamin Beech from Derby, Rev. John Lewis from Salem, and Messrs. Josiah Turrel and Matthias Hitchcock from Salem, and Levi Tomlinson from Derby, delegates." Rev. John Lewis was chosen moderator and Mr. Tomlinson scribe.

Boston Public Library.

For the solacement, however, of scholars and advanced investigators, in the Boston Library are sedulously guarded several special collections which give lustre to the reputation of the institution, and which are veritable Meccas for scholars throughout the country. At present the special libraries are eleven in number. The 600 exceedingly choice volumes from the library of the late John A. Lewis are devoted entirely to early and rare Americana.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; un. not married; v. p. see page; etc. Instead of repeating the name of a place in the same paragraph initials only are frequently given.

who died Aug. 3, 1813, in his 70th year.

Also of ELIZABETH, his wife, who died Feb. 11, 1820,
in her 68th year.

The record from the old family Bible states that he d. Aug. 2, 1814, and his wife Feb. 8, 1820.

A correspondent informs me that the younger of the two ch. born to Edmund
Lewis (I Book 33) after he came to Lynn, was Benjamin, the head of this Book.

I have before me a copy of the commission of Capt. James Lewis, obtained in 1717 from Gov. Saltonstall under King George. The original is in the possession of R. G. Curtis, Esq.

In chapter 39, Frances (419) m. Geo.

In chapter 40, Rev. Elisha Renford should read Rexford. Friends in Stratford, Ct., remember when the descendants of this Rev. Rexford (a graduate of Yale, A. B., 1763, M. A. 1766.—Ed.) lived in the very house that stood, until recently,
on the Benjamin Lewis property in Stratford. It was moved to make way for a beautiful Library building, presented to the town by Birdseye Blakeman. Mr.
Philo Lewis thought this house the one owned by Benjamin, the head of our tribe.

WILLIAM LEWIS, Farmington, Ct.

CHAPTER LXXXII.

SETH LEWIS.

Died on Aug. 7, 1895, at Lewisville, Pa. Seth Lewis, in the 67th year of his age. Deceased was born in Broome county, N. Y., January 27th, 1829. He was the son of William (XV 8. v. p. 42, Vol. I reprint) and Ruth A. (Bierce) Lewis, who came to what is now the prosperous village of Lewisville in 1839, and reared a family of nine children, enduring all the hardships that attended the pioneer in Potter county. Seth assisted in the duties of farming until 1850, when he attended Alfred University, from which institution he was graduated in 1856, having in the meantime worked his way through school. After teaching till 1860 he was elected County Superintendent of Schools, serving for one term. In 1863 he responded to the call of his country, enlisting to Co. K, 37th Penn'a Militia. He was wounded several times in battle and promoted from time to time till he reached the rank of Capt. in Feb. 1865. Upon his return home after the close of the war, he studied law with Hon. A. G. Olmstead and was admitted to practice in 1867. He has continued the practice of law with other business up to the time of his last sickness, editing the Ulysses Sentinel meanwhile for about six years.

Mr. Lewis was identified with many organizations, was a member of Lewisville Lodge F. & A. M., being its secretary from its beginning till last year, when he was made Worshipful Master of the Ulysses Chapter R. A. M., of which he was High Priest at the time of his death. He was also a member of the Ulysses Lodge I. O. O. F., and of the O. A. Lewis Post G. A. R. In all these fraternal associations he was active, influential and zealous, and a large number of these orders took part in the last sad rites for the brother they loved, at the burial services conducted by the Masons on Saturday, the 10th. In speaking of the character of Seth Lewis words fail to portray its nobility as combined with its simplicity. He was original in thought, unconventional in action and, above all, sincere in every undertaking. His innate sense of justice made him a better counselor than a partisan advocate and yet he tried to invariably espouse the cause of right and then listen to no compromise with wrong. His work as a teacher continued all through his life, carrying him beyond the narrow confines of legal technicalities to the educating of the people in the great principles of the civil law and the requirements of perfect civil liberty. His kindness and generosity endeared him to all his associates and his faults were but foibles which, in the great light of the cardinal virtues of his well-ordered life, sink into utter insignificance.—Potter-co., Pa. Journal.

BOOK XIX.

JOHN LEWIS, Wales to Virginia.

CHAPTER IX.

Many inquiries have been received concerning the descendants of John Lewis of Hanover-co., Va. In response the genealogical tables for this month (a double one,) and next will give the names of these Lewises as given by Wm. Terrell Lewis in his work the Genealogy of the Lewis Family. If members of this tribe will send in their records the Editor will be very glad to complete the framework already started. Is not LEWISIANA the proper place for the fulfillment of the earnest desire of him who wrote, "Were it our fault we would offer an apology for the many errors and omissions doubtless to be found in this volume.....May some enterprising member of the family continue the researches after the scattered and lost members of the family and some day publish a new edition of this book?"

Of the six children—three sons and three daughters—of John of Hanover-co. mentioned in his will the author of the Lewis Family in America has traced the descendants of only one son, David, to which all but less than 70 pages of his book are devoted. In all these many families the record of hardly a single one is complete in the way that the records are of other tribes of our race published in these pages. Here then is a grand field for work for some one. LEWISIANA readers are waiting for him. Who is he?

Meanwhile let each member of this tribe who receives this issue of our little paper send immediately to this office the full family record of his line so far as he can and thus do his part towards this work of duty and love.

CHAPTER LVI.

By H. J. LEWIS, JR., LOUISVILLE, KY.

December 2—Captain Spotswood and self went out as volunteers with a party commanded by Ensign Winter Targie to gather corn from the deserted fields. We arrived about two o'clock at the plantation of one Crisseps, most delightfully situated on land that gave me great pleasure. It was a piece of low ground entirely surrounded by the mountains, the prospect very romantic, high rocks on the sides of the mountains some hundreds of feet perpendicular to the Potomac river. Here we lodged this night in a comfortable house.

December 3—This morning we took our guns and after directing our men (thirty in number) to gather the corn, we took different courses to hunt for deer and such game as the place afforded. This evening Captain Spotswood went with a soldier to the plantation of one, Williams, where the houses were burnt by the savages. The body of a woman laid near one of the houses, her head being scalped; and, also, a small boy and a young man. This horrid scene gave us a terrible shock, but I hope with the leave of God we shall still overcome the cruel, barbarous and inhuman enemy.

JOHN LEWIS, Ireland to Virginia.

CHAPTER XL.

BY EUGENE C. MASSIE, RICHMOND, VA.

This account then gives the names of the ch. of Thomas (2) as given on p 25, Vol. V, with the exception that the daus. have their married names; Mrs. John Stuart, of Greenbrier co., Va. (now West Va.,) Mrs. Margaret Bowyer, of Port Republic, Va., Mrs. McElhaney, of Rockbridge-co., Va., Mrs. Gilmer, of Ga., Mrs. French, of Ky., Mrs. Yancy, of Rockingham-co., Va., Mrs. Carthrac, (?) of Port Republic, Va.

Next the ch. of Andrew (3) as on pp. 25 and 107, Vol. V.

Next the ch. of William (4) as on p 25, Vol. V.

John (12 v p 139, Vol. V.) was commissioned Lieutenant in Capt. Hays Company in the regiment of Regulars raised in the War of the Revolution for the defence of the Eastern Shore of Virginia. In 1777 he with his regiment was ordered to join Gen'l Washington's army, which they did before the battle of Brandywine. Before the battle of Germantown he and his brother Lieutenant, the late Andrew Moore of Rockbridge, were put in command of a company of backwoods riflemen and were detached under the late Gen'l Daniel Morgan to join Gen'l Gates, to aid in the capture of Gen'l Burgoyne at Saratoga. Capt.

Hayes with the residue of the regiment remained with the main army. During the absence of Lewis the battle of Germantown was fought, in which Matthews' Regiment was captured and suffered great privations. Lewis and Moore were at the capture of Burgoyne. When they rejoined the main army their Captain and brother soldiers being prisoners, they were placed in the command of other men; and in the new arrangement thus made, Andrew Moore took offence at some promotion then made and resigned his commission; whereupon Lewis succeeded to the command of his company. He lay at Valley Forge with Gen'l Washington's army in the winter of 1777-8, and commanded a company at the battle of Monmouth in that year. In the winter of 1778 the ranks of Gen'l Washington were so thinned that Lewis was discharged as a supernumerary and returned to Augusta where his father then resided. Shortly thereafter he removed to the Sweet Springs in Monroe County, and his father with the residue of the family soon followed. He was not again called into service.

The wife of Webster (3) was a gr. dau. of James Rankin, who lived at Rankin's Ferry, near the Conewago Falls of the Susquehanna river. He was a large property owner, a surveyor in profession, in religion a Quaker and a decided Tory in politics. His vast estates were confiscated and sold. The last legislature in Penn. had under consideration a measure entitled, "An act reversing the attainder of James Rankin and authorizing suits to be brought in the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin-co., against the Commonwealth to determine who are his heirs and the amount of proceeds of the sale of his property, paid into the treasury, if any, and for the recovery thereof by said heirs."

CHAPTER X.

Concerning the Rev. Henry Caner mentioned on p 12, Vol. VI, the following clipping is of interest.

The building of the Massachusetts Historical Society stands on one of these confiscated estates, formerly the property of the Loyalist rector of King's Chapel, the Rev. Henry Caner. When the worthy rector shook the dust of Boston from his feet, and went where he could pray for King George in public without being accounted guilty of treason, he left behind him a dwelling-house and barn, "situate in Tree Mont Street, near the stone church, with the land and appurtenances." This estate was appraised at $12,750, but was sold for just one-third of that sum to Samuel Henly, and the front portion of it became the property of the Historical Society in 1856.

Obituaries.

Former Judge Alexander M. Lewis of Brooklyn, died Aug. 3, 1895, at his summer home in Lakeville, Conn., from pneumonia. Mr. Lewis was 72 years old, and lived at No. 87 Pierrepont street with his wife and daughter. He was born in Rockland County, but moved to Brooklyn when quite young. Early in the war he was appointed Internal Revenue Collector in N. Y. city by President Lincoln, who was a close friend of his, and later he was a member of the Court of Claims in Washington. For several years he was active in Republican politics in his ward, and was at the head of the Brooklyn Republican Club.

Mrs. Mary E. Lewis, who died at Maspeth, June 28, 1895, in her 75th year, was a remarkable woman. Shortly before the war Mrs. Lewis was associated with her mother, Mrs. Mary A. Crandall, in freeing the slaves by what was known at that time as the "Underground railroad." The late Joseph Wilde and Elijah Withington were also interested in the railroad, and through their efforts and those of the women associated with them a large number of runaway slaves were aided in reaching Canada. Mrs. Lewis' duty in connection with the railroad was the alteration of clothing used to disguise the runaways. Mrs. Lewis was a native of Brooklyn and she was formerly a teacher in the Brooklyn Orphan asylum, and afterward took charge of the female department of the Williamsburgh village school, which at present is School No. 17, in the Fourteenth ward of Brooklyn.

EXPLANATION:—The Roman numerals at the left denote the generations. Stars are placed after the names of the youngest member of each family. All on the same line are of the same generation, and hence are cousins with the exception of names between the stars which are brothers and sisters. If you preserve your copies, and of course you do, send for an extra copy, cut this page into strips on the division lines and paste the strips together. Then you will have a complete diagram of your family so far as it has been published. All additions and corrections you can furnish will be very thankfully received.

Clippings.

NASHVILLE, July 30.—Maj. E. C. Lewis, of this city, was to-day elected Director General of the Tennessee Centennial Exposition, which will be held in 1896. He is a prominent business man, the manager of the Sycamore Powder Mills Company.

A great measure of the success of the negro's share in the exposition at Atlanta, Ga., is to be credited to Gen. J. R. Lewis, chief of the department of installation. He is an officer of the Union Army who settled here after the war, and who has always taken an intelligent and practical as distinguished from a sentimental interest in the freedmen. He has taken hold of the negro exhibition with much spirit.

C. W. Lewis has returned from a very pleasant two weeks' trip to Beacon Falls. During his stay there Mr. Lewis took a number of photographic views of picturesque scenery, with which that village abounds. Mr. Lewis is charmed with the beauty of Beacon Falls, Ct., and says that for pure air, delightful and romantic scenery and other accessories for solid comfort that village is unsurpassed.
