New Books.

In this issue four new Books are commenced some of which are undoubtedly parts of other Books. Let all who can in any way help, do so. It is hoped that all who have any records of these families will send them immediately to this office.

GENEALOGICAL RECORDS.

Explanations, Abbreviations, etc.

For convenience the records of the various Lewis families are divided into Books and each Book into chapters. At the head of each Book appears the name of the earliest known ancestor of that family. The List of Books is a complete index to the Books as published to this time. New Books will be added from time to time as new branches of the Lewis family are found. As soon as Books are proved parts of others they will be merged into the Books to which they belong. Each name is numbered when first printed and whenever the name is repeated this number follows in brackets. The abbreviations commonly used in genealogical work are used; as b. for born; d. died; m. married; m. (1) first wife; dau. daughter; unm. not married; v. p. see page, etc. Instead of repeating the name of a place in the same paragraph initials only are frequently given.

WILLIAM LEWIS, Farmington, Conn.

CHAPTER XCIX.

From a Panthorn Romance by Jessica
 Wolcott Allen in the Connecticut Quarterly.

Not far from Josiah's home was the more pretentious one of Mr. Lemuel Lewis.
 When he was forty-nine years old there were only six in the town whose property was listed higher than his, and two of them were Lewises. His Puritan grandfather came over in the ship Lion which also brought Gov. Winthrop's "sweet wife" Margaret. The family traced their descent from the French Louis, and if this genealogical record appears unnecessary to the thread of the story you will understand it better in the light of an apology for the "high feelin's" of Lemuel Lewis' oldest daughter Merab.

She was a beautiful girl and bore evidence of her gentle ancestry, her hair and eyes were said to be "black as coals," and, although quite tall, her hands and feet were very small and shapely.

The neighbors said that Josiah Root was more fond of watching those pretty hands as she sat at her spinning-wheel than he was of reading Dr. Todd's old manuscripts or of caring for the herbs he had in the garden. Even people waiting to give the young doctor their life's blood, were frequently obliged to "stay a bit" till Josiah could come around the back way from Merab's house.

After his return from the town meeting he no sooner had eaten his succotash, rye and Indian bread, with his "flip of beer," than he started over to talk with Merab of the "doin's."

She sat by her spinning-wheel and he looked at her pretty hands and then up into her face as she rose to greet him and, more impulsive than wise, he expressed the first thought which she inspired.

"I saw many a lass on the way to town this morn, Merab, but none methought looked fair as thee."

"I'll offer thee a stool, Josiah, but I never thought greatly of thy judgment or thy taste."

Ignoring the failure of his compliment he turned the subject saying, "'Tis a bit too warm for comfort, think you not."

"I could guess that much of folks that have naught but their comfort to think on."

"Thy guessing served thee but poorly this time, Merab, for I never had more to think on. And beside, I came to tell thee something of my thoughts if there's time to hear me."

"Thy thoughts being so busy mayhap thy hands 'll take a turn some day," was the sarcastic reply. He winced but said calmly, "some day thou'll know that hours spent in study are not to be sneered at," and "Oh, no," she interrupted with a ringing laugh—"not if thy mother will furnish the porridge and cider."

A tinge of red swept over his pale face making his blue eyes look still deeper blue and his light hair more golden.

Jumping up from the stool he said quickly but without any sign of anger, "I wanted to talk in a sensible way, but it's without use in trying, and I'll bid you good day, Merab."

FRANCIS LEWIS, Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

CHAPTER XVII.

BY JULIA L. DELAFIELD IN HER BIOGRAPHY OF MORGAN LEWIS.

With the exception of his parents and the family of his brother, Col. Lewis had no relations in America. After his marriage he was identified with the connections of his wife (Gertrude, one of the daughters of the Colonial Judge, Robert Livingston).  Colonel Lewis was married at Clermont in May, 1779. I have before me a letter from Mrs. Robert Livingston, addressed to her daughter, Catherine. (Mrs. Garretson) and dated 21st of May, giving an account of the wedding. She writes: "The young couple both looked charming, but Col. Lewis appeared to great advantage—his deportment suited to the solemn occasion, and to my girl tender and soothing beyond expression. Immediately after the ceremony he took her with one arm round her waist and led her up to me, and jointly had my blessing, and next to his father who caught him in his arms with transport and kissed him twice; he kissed Gitty and called her his dear daughter, and next followed a general salute." ***

Colonel Lewis had provided a phaeton and pair, then the fashionable equipage, and two well-mounted out-riders, to convey his bride across the country to Philadelphia in order to introduce her to his mother. Just before they arrived at their journey's end one of the attendants was impertinent and Colonel Lewis dismissed him. Grandmama, when she talked to us of her journey, ended by saying: "So, after having astonished the bushes and briers of New Jersey by my style, I had the mortification of entering the first town of America with only my husband, my phaeton and pair, and one attendant." On the 5th of February, 1780, my mother, the only child of Morgan Lewis and Gertrude Livingston, was born at Clermont. She was the first grandchild in the family of Judge Robert Livingston, and was named Margaret, after her grandmother, Margaret Beekman.

George Amasa Lewis (241) was of the old school. A strict observer of the Sabbath, always attending church. In early life he established the cash system in all his transactions, paying cash for everything and carried it out to his dying day, even paying his doctor up to the Saturday previous to his death. He was charitable, always giving in a way to allow the recipient to retain their self respect. He performed every office of a good citizen. Was a militiaman and fireman, and but 2 members of the first Engine Co. of Malden survived him. An exemplary Christian. No one ever heard him utter an oath. He never used liquor or tobacco. His weight was always full and measure running over. He was a farmer in early life, a last maker for years and in the wood and coal business for several years previous to 1875 when he fell from a tree, broke both collar bones and fractured 2 ribs at the age of 75, after which he gradually declined until his death in 1880. His wife died 3 days previous and was buried the day of his death. He arranged for her funeral and his own and after her burial, composed himself and departed peacefully, Mrs. Lewis was a very generous woman. tender hearted and with a great desire to do good. She was the friend of the orphan. She took and brought up 3 children not her own and others found a home with her and care in sickness and death, among them were several who died of consumption

That pamphlet was the result of long studies both in her home on the old farm and with the benefit of the library and the collection of the Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia, under the direction of John Cassin, one of the leading ornithologists of the world. It was the germ of her later and improved charts. She was delighted to find that her views, which she had reached from general considerations, were sustained by anatomical research of the highest order.

In 1876 she exhibited in the Centennial Exposition, a wax model along with her chart of the Animal Kingdom. Here Prof. Huxley and other prominent naturalists found opportunity of examining her productions, and they were highly commended. Fortified by the encouragement of the best zoologists of England and America, her confidence was now assured, and she was ready to apply the same principles to the construction of a "Chart of the Vegetable Kingdom." By 1880, she had outlined the latter, and had completed it by 1885. Since then, all her charts are revised in accordance with the progress of scientific knowledge. Prof. Maria Mitchell, then of Vassar College, elected president of the fourth congress of the association for the Advancement of Women having urged Miss Lewis to prepare a scientific paper for reading before the meeting, the latter responded by choosing for her subject "The Development of the Animal Kingdom." Prof. Mitchell published that paper in pamphlet form, and circulated it widely amongst scientists. In 1870 Miss Lewis was elected a member of the Academy of Natural Sciences Philadelphia. She is, at present an honorary member of the Rochester Academy of Science, Rochester, N. Y., of the Philosophical Society of West Chester, Chester County, Pa., of the New Century Club of Philadelphia, of the Women's Anthropological Society of America, Washington, D. C. and recently, has been elected a life member of the Delaware County Institute of Science, in Media, where she now resides. Miss Lewis continues to lead a busy life, and in addition to her scientific studies, finds time for many diverse social duties. At home she is secretary of the Media Woman's Christian Temperance Union, secretary of the Delaware County Forestry Association, superintendent of scientific temperance instruction of the Delaware County Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and chief of the cultural department of the Media Flower Mission.

CHAPTER IV.

IRA LEWIS.

Says the Oswego Times (N. Y.): Ira Lewis was a son of the late Benjamin Lewis, an early resident of the town of Oswego, who later was a prominent and highly respected resident of what is known as the Lewis District in the northern part of Granby in which Ira spent his boyhood and early manhood. His father, Benjamin Lewis, was a cousin of the late William Lewis of that city. Ira came to Oswego in early life and with his brother John engaged in the flour and milling business under the firm name of John and Ira Lewis. He went from Oswego to Cleveland, O., and was prominently in business there and subsequently went to Kansas City where he was in the paint business, being president of the Lewis Paint Co. Mr. Lewis was an intelligent gentleman of much amiability of character and highly respected by all who knew him. Mrs. Lewis was Louisa Barstow, the daughter of the late Ormund Barstow, one of the most highly respected residents of southwest Oswego, who survives her husband. (v. Ira 14, p 190, Vol VI.)

Vol. VI) lived at Winter Harbor. He witnessed Geo. Cleaves take possession in 1637 (June). Folsom says, "Thomas Lewis was a gentleman of more than ordinary standing." He was one of the Court of Commissioners convened Mar. 21, 1636. Rev. Richard Gibson, an Episcopal minister, married Mary Lewis, one of Mr. Lewis' daughters. (The Hercules was the ship she probably came over in.) Jany. 24, 1639, Gibson wrote Gov. Winthrop, he had lately married Mary, daughter of Mr. Thomas Lewis of Saco.

Rev. Richard Gibson sued John Boynton son of Richard, co partner of Thomas Lewis, for libel and afterward was tried for counseling revolt and left the country. Thomas Lewis is reported by Willis as dying without issue. He is reported (in error) as dying in Boston in 1635. N. E. Reg. Vol. 2 p 204, speaks of him as Gent and Agent in 1631. The Boynton family went to Newburyport to live after their house was burned down by the Indians in 1675.

George Cleaves encouraged Rev. R. Gibson to settle on Richmond's Island.

BOOK LXXXIII.

ALANSON LEWIS, New York, 1762.

CHAPTER I.

BY STEADMAN CRANDALL, MONCTON, N. B. CANADA.

Alanson (1) Lewis, the head of our branch of the Lewis family with his family of six children came to this place in 1783, and settled on a grant of land received from the crown. They being the first settlers the place (now on the outskirts of Moncton) was called, as it is known to-day, Lewisville. Before his removal here he married on Long Island Mary Merritt a sister of Nathaniel Merritt of New York. He and wife both died and were buried here, but all records are lost and all trace of graves and stones have disappeared.

It is family tradition that in some way we are connected with Francis Lewis, the Signer of the Declaration of Independence. This tradition so far as I have been able to sift it rests upon two reasons:

First:—because a branch of the Ludlow family removed here at the same time, descendants of which are still living in Fredericton, N. B.

Second:—my grandfather in his lifetime used to tell of the persons and incidents given in Book XL in the pages of LEWISIANA. 6 ch. b.

BOOK LXXXIV.

VALENTINE LEWIS, Ulster-co., N. Y.

CHAPTER I.

BY REV. Z. N. LEWIS, FISHKILL LAND-ING, NEW YORK.

I have not the slightest knowledge or remembrance of my grandfather's first name. He came, I think, from one of Eastern States and settled in Marlborough, Ulster-co., N. Y. This was before the Revolution. I supposed he died and was buried there. My father Valentine (1) was not in the Revolution, but his brother Elijah (2) and his brother-in-law, a man by the name of Bradbury were both in Washington's army.

My father had a family of eleven children, 8 sons and 3 daus.

CHAPTER II.

BY HARRIETTE L. CHRISTIANSON, FAN-
WOOD, N. J.

My gr. father Enoch (7) was one of thirteen children of whom I know the names of eight only. The little I know of them is as follows:

Letitia (11) was the eldest child and m. Elton Ransom. They settled what is now Ransomville, N. Y. Of the ch. there were:

- 14.I. Lewis.
- 15.II. Dr. Harrison.

William (5) was a preacher and a missionary to Minnesota in the early "Forties" He d. at Belle Prairie, Minn.

Zephaniah N. (10) is the only one of the ch. of Valentine Lewis still living. His father lived at Milton Landing (then Old Paaltz) on the Hudson, N. Y. His mother was Ruth Woolsey.

Record of Life.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

In Naugatuck, Ct. May 20, 1846, by Rev. A. K. Teele, Clark Murray Platt and Amelia Maria Lewis. Mr. and Mrs. Pratt celebrated their anniversary at their home 36 Buckingham-st., Waterbury, Ct.

Beloved, we bring our tribute
Of gratulation true,
For the beautiful years behind you,
For the brighter years in view,
For the care that has led you onward
And shielded from every harm;
For the love that now envelops
Your life in its golden charm:
The love of clustering children
Children's children: dear;
The love of kindred spirits
That throng about you here:
The wealth of pure affection
That countless souls accord
On earth or in the glory
Of the ever-loving Lord.

Long, long may you together
Your happy way pursue,
Over a shining pathway,
Under an arch of blue.
The precious bond that holds you
But binding closer still
As hand in hand you bravely
Ascend the flower strewn hill.
Long, long remain the wisdom
And joy of eling youth;
Long, long their inspiration
To purity and truth.
And as a peace unmeasured
From heart to heart shall flow;
You'll ever bless the nuptials
Of fifty years ago.

DIVORCED.

At Louisville, Ky., Mollie A. Lewis and Charles W. Lewis who were married May 11, 1886.

DEATHS.

In Hartford, Ct., June 23, 1896, drowned in Connecticut river, Leroy Lewis, ae. 12 years son Allan Lewis of 63 Governor st. [Another clipping states that he was son of Wm. O. Lewis of Parkville. Ed.]

In Germantown, Penn., July 15, 1896, Walter O. Lewis, 82 years old, for many years the manager of the Ship News office in New York. Mr. Lewis was born in Suffield, Conn. In his youth he became a telegraph operator in Hartford, and afterwards came to New York. When the telegraph line was built to Sandy Hook he leased it and managed it for many years. He inaugurated a system of telegraphy for reporting the arrival of vessels, which was of great assistance to the news service of that time. After the Western Union Company took possession of the Sandy Hook line, Mr. Lewis became connected with that company. He was the founder of the Ship News Office, which he managed from October, 1867, until he was taken seriously ill two years ago. He was one of the early advocates of the feasibility of the Atlantic cable, and a warm friend of Cyrus W. Field. When the Boston and New York Telegraph Company was organized, he was made one of the managers. Mr. Lewis' home was in South Orange, N. J., where his body was taken. He leaves two married daughters and a son, A. W. Lewis.

MEMORIAL.

From Louisville, Ky. Courier Journal.

Visitors at Cave Hill have noticed a monument which was recently erected to the late Henry J. Lewis, one of our most enterprising and worthy citizens, and which is attracting a great deal of admiration. It is certainly a beautiful one in its symmetrical proportions and substantial appearance.

Notes.

At the Conventions:—Alfred Henry Lewis has won his spurs by good work in the journalistic field. He is a brilliant and picturesque writer, now on the staff of the New York Journal. The Boston Herald secured his services at St. Louis during the Republican national convention and the telling dispatches he sent are sufficient evidence of truthful and interesting report. . . . In Gen. Horace Porters' private car with a party of gentlemen returning from St. Louis and en route to Canton to tender their congratulations to the Hon. Wm. McKinley on his nomination was Hon. Richard J. Lewis of New York. . . . When the state of Georgia was called, H. T. Lewis of that state came to the platform and put in nomination William J. Bryan of Nebraska, saying that if public office was a reward for public services no man merited such reward more than he. In the late political contests Mr.

Bryan stood among his peers, like Saul among the Israelites, head and shoulders above all the rest. "Honor him with the nomination," he said, "and you will do credit to the party and earn for yourselves the plaudits of your constituents and the thanks of prosperity."....Mr. Maloney, said: "In the name of the State of Washington, I place in nomination (for Vice President) her honored son, James Hamilton Lewis."

Our Ladies:—Mrs. John B. Lewis of Louisville, is the Vice President of the Women's Club of Louisville, and a member of the Press Committee for the biennial. Mrs. Lewis is also a member of the "Fortnightly of '76" and the Filson Club. She is a zealous club woman, and has few equals as a presiding officer....Mrs. Wm. Todd Helmuth, who was born in New York, and whose maiden name was Fannie I. Lewis, has achieved a widespread and enviable reputation by effective labor in those fields which reflect credit upon the moral force and ability of woman. The early married life of Dr. and Mrs. Helmuth in St. Louis was devoted to a labor which in great part looked to the ameliorating of the conditions and suffering of the poor. Mrs. Helmuth was a social favorite and one of the brilliant leaders in society, yet found time to devote to charitable work....When Dr. Helmuth was called to New York as professor of surgery in the Homeopathic College he found that there was practically no hospital or facilities for the students to prosecute clinical practice. It was due to plans suggested by Mrs. Helmuth for a free hospital that Gov. Flower gave the building now known as "Flower" Hospital, and which was furnished and is maintained by an organization effected by Mrs. Helmuth and of which she is the President. This "Guild" as it is called, is composed of about eighty women who not only give money, but tender their services.Mrs. Helmuth has charge of the domestic details of Hel-moth House," an admirable private hospital established by Dr. Helmuth in connection with his private practice. Such is the medical and surgical skill of Mrs. Helmuth that it is said, in cases of extreme emergency, her presence and prompt attention have saved life or limb. Her paper before the Sorosis descriptive of modern advances in surgical treatment attracted the attention of the most eminent surgeons of the day. As the wife of the head of a scientific medical society, Mrs. Helmuth entertains many persons, distinguished in letters and science, at her summer home at Bar Harbor, as well as at her resident house in New York....Besides being three times elected President of Sorosis, she is the presiding officer in the Woman's Guild, President of the mission, manager of the Magdalene Society, and is a member of and holds important positions in other active organizations.
